1. Two antennas were observed approximately 100 yards east of the Turgovishte-Razgrad highway at a point N 43-26, E 26-32 between the villages of Gradina and Manastirsko, both in Razgrad district. (See appendix, page 3, for the approximate location of these antennas.) [REDACTED] 25X1X

25X1X [REDACTED] first noticed an antenna (see 25X1X enclosures), located approximately 100 yards east of the highway, which he describes as a steel structure about 60 feet high. It was stationary and informant noticed no provision for rotation of any major part of the structure. [REDACTED] 25X1X

- 25X1X2. [REDACTED] a second antenna (see sketch below) at approximately 100 yards northeast of the antenna described above and about 150 yards from his position on the highway. He describes this antenna as a circular steel structure mounted on a concrete base. The structure, approximately 15-20 feet high, appeared to be capable of rotation but was stationary at the time of informant's observation. The circular element of the structure was about 10 feet in diameter. The sketch below is of the second antenna:
